With the invitation 'Let us pray,' the Pope explained, the priest exhorts the people to recollect themselves with him in a moment of silence, in order to be conscious of being in the presence of God and to have arise, in each one's heart, the personal intentions with which he takes part in the Mass.

After the priest says "Let us pray," a moment of silence follows in which each person thinks of their personal intentions, what they wish to ask for in prayer. This silence, the Pontiff noted, is a way each person makes himself available to the Holy Spirit.

"Silence, whose character depends on the moment when it intervenes during the Mass, allows, just before the Collect, to dispose ourselves to listening to the voice of our heart and especially that of the Holy Spirit and to present to the Lord our personal intentions. "

The Pope reminded that the prayer follows.

"After this brief moment of silence," the Jesuit Pope explained, "the priest, with his arms extended to imitate Christ on the Cross, expresses to God, in the name of everyone, the common prayer which concludes the rites of introduction, and whose content goes from praise to supplication."
